Go...

A game as old as Stonehenge
Subtle, deep, exciting and fun
Played by millions around the world
Only three rules, can be explained in five minutes
Promotes harmony, balance, fairness, reflection
More challenging even than chess
Different to any other known game
No two games ever played the same

A rich tradition of proverbs, puzzles, art, stories and history
Computers play much weaker than people
Ranks and handicaps mean the weak can beat the strong
Improves brain-power in young and old
A Japanese martial art played by samurai warriors
Can be played over the internet
Tournament prizes support many professionals
A game for life
